

ANDREW J. SCOTT, III is a principal-partner of Scott-Roberts and Associates, LLC, which an active member of the National Association of Professional Background Screeners, Inc. (NAPBS), and holds a certification in the Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA).

Andy began his law enforcement career in 1978 with the North Miami Police Department, and soon transferred to the North Miami Beach Police Department in 1982 where he ascended through the ranks to the position of Assistant Police Chief and retired in 1998. He was then selected in October 1998 as the Chief of Police for the Boca Raton Police Department, out of a field of 147 national candidate, and remained with the Boca Raton Police Department until 2006, when he retired from law enforcement and went into the private sector.

Under his leadership the Boca Raton Police Department became nationally recognized as a premier law enforcement agency, receiving numerous awards and accolades for innovative policing services. Andy has received numerous awards during his career, including from the Federal Bureau of Investigation for his assistance in the investigation of the first bio-terrorist attack on United States soil, when anthrax was released into the American Media Building in Boca Raton in October, 2001. He was selected by the office of the former Governor of Florida, Jeb Bush, to assist in promoting professionalism in law enforcement, and was recognized by the National Center for Women and Policing for promoting women in the workplace and received the coveted “Breaking the Glass Ceiling” award.

Andy has been a guest lecturer for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Southern Police Institute, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc., the Commission on Florida Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc., the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, and many other organizations. He has also been a guest commentator on law enforcement practices and procedures for news organizations such as CNN, MSNBC, FOX, HLN-Nancy Grace, NPR, and various local TV media outlets, as well as a myriad of print media and radio stations throughout the country.

Andy has a Master’s Degree in Management, a B.A. degree in Psychology, and a Master’s Certificate in Human Resources, and he is a graduate of the prestigious FBI National Academy in Quantico Virginia.

Phone: 561.302.0756
Email: ascott@scottrobertsassociates.com