Emily Edwards is an associate in the Los Angeles office of Manning & Kass, where she practices on the Workers' Compensation and Military and Veterans Law Teams. Prior to joining Manning & Kass, Ms. Edwards practiced workers' compensation defense at a respected workers' compensation defense firm in Los Angeles. She has experience representing insurance carriers, self-insured employers, and public entities in all aspects of workers' compensation defense.

Ms. Edwards was admitted to the California Bar in 2013 after graduating cum laude from Pepperdine University School of Law with a certificate from the Straus Institute of Dispute Resolution. During her law school career, Ms. Edwards served as an editor for the National Association of Administrative Law Judiciary Journal, and published an article regarding the initiation of the Rigs to Reef Project in California. She also participated in the school's International Program in London, and was a member of Phi Delta Phi Honor Society. Her academic achievements placed her on the Dean's Honor List. During law school, Ms. Edwards also gained experience as a judicial law clerk for the Honorable Judge Flurer in the California Superior Court, and as a law clerk for the district attorney's Organized Crime Division.

Prior to attending law school, Ms. Edwards studied political science at the University of California, Los Angeles; where she graduated magna cum laude.
